FEATURED PRESENTER

Kristen Johnson

Kristen Johnson is the Senior Director of Accreditation of Learning Programs at NAEYC. Recognized as the gold standard for excellence in early childhood education, NAEYC Accreditation works to improve the quality of child care, preschool and kindergarten programs by establishing high-level, research-based standards and accrediting programs that meet these standards.

Prior to joining NAEYC, Kristen served as the Vice President of Customer Solutions at Teaching Strategies. She began her career in a preschool in New York. While Kristen enjoyed teaching, she discovered her true passion was found in working to improve the supports and systems available to early childhood teachers. This led to her relocation to Philadelphia to obtain her Masters in Early Childhood Education with a concentration on Public Policy and Administration from the University of Pennsylvania. Following college, she worked as an Early Childhood Specialist at the Please Touch Museum. She then spent five years in the membership department at the Delaware Valley Association for the Education of Young Children, concluding as the Director of Membership Services.
