Megan Shea-Bates

Megan Shea-Bates has worked in education for over a decade as an educator and an administrator. Her experience ranges from pre-K special education to elementary students to adults learning English. She is currently the principal at Broadway Learning Center, where Conscious Discipline is a schoolwide practice. She has coached teachers in the classroom and presented leadership and group trainings. Megan is also the owner of ELE LLC which incorporates early learning education, consulting, training, workshops, and other professional services.

Megan first discovered Conscious Discipline after becoming a principal in her local community at a school with a 93% free and reduced lunch rate. She says, "The powers and skills allow for teachers in traumatized environments to see students through a new lens and to embody a formula for the instructional practice of social and emotional learning. This is revolutionary for public education!"

Since then, Conscious Discipline has impacted Megan both personally and professionally, influencing local schools and the community. At her school, the welcoming and supportive environment she has fostered through Conscious Discipline is apparent, and so are her students' improvements in self-regulation and problem-solving.
